With Halloween around the corner, horror fans have been inundated with new frightful options in theaters, television screens and now, thanks to Cemetery Dance Publications, e-readers and tablets!

Cemetery Dance is offering a terrifying treat for lovers of literature, with a series of Halloween-centric e-book Singles for every weekday leading up to October 31 at an affordable 99 cents per short story. Contributors to this series include scare scribes Joe R. Lansdale (BUBBA HO-TEP), Simon Clark (THE NIGHT OF THE TRIFFIDS), Stewart O'Nan (SNOW ANGELS), Graham Masterton (THE MANITOU) and many more. And for those without an e-reader, the Cemetery Dance website has links to free applications for mobile devices and computers that make reading these digital tales shockingly easy.

Editor and contributor Brian Freeman tells Fango, "We're big fans of Halloween, and so are most of our readers, and we've finally started getting into e-book publishing in a big way, so it seemed like the perfect fit." Freeman adds that the stories range from traditional Halloween tales to modern takes on the wicked holiday, and since the stories stand on their own merits, readers can pick and choose the Singles at their leisure. "We think this is a great way to discover some great new authors, and we'd recommend readers give every story a shot. These authors really brought their A-game."

As of this writing, nine stories have hit the website, and you can get them for 99 cents apiece here
.