Damn! I just came back from the holiday weekend and my desk is totally cluttered with DVDs. What better way to clean off my desk than with another FANGORIA contest. This time, we've got five copies of SALVAGE from Revolver Entertainment which released just yesterday. Read on for the details!

"Christmas Eve, and the residents of a quiet British cul-de-sac are suddenly plunged into a world of violence, terror and paranoia when a group of heavily armed military personnel storm their road ordering them at gunpoint to retreat inside their homes.

Unsure if this is the sign of a terrorist attack, or something much worse, one local mother finds it in herself to desperately fight to save her estranged daughter stranded across the street. However, with growing dread, the residents soon discover that the threat is more monstrous than any of them could possibly imagine, and survival is no longer a guarantee...

A stunning debut from director Lawrence Gough, featuring an award-winning cast (Neve McIntosh – Best Horror Actress at Fantastic Fest 2009), Salvage is a nail-biting exercise in sheer adrenaline-fuelled fear that will chill you to your very core."

For more on SALVAGE, check out FANGORIA #295 and head over to its official website . To win your own copy, send me an email at rebekah@fangoria.com

Be sure to place “SALVAGE” in the subject line, and include the following info-

-Name

- Mailing Address

- Email Address

- Age

- And let me know if you would like to join the FANGORIA mailing list.

Good luck!!!

{jcomments on}