This Saturday, December 18, FANGORIA will be throwing a huge party in Richmond, Virginia to celebrate our upcoming 300th issue. Chop Suey Books and Gallery 5 have teamed up with Fango to host a night of horrific mayhem.

We'll be screening a number of FANGORIA film clips, and then watching a holiday themed Horror Remix featuring ICED, CHRISTMAS EVIL and SILENT NIGHT, DEADLY NIGHT 2. Plus, the evening's screenings will be accented with the burlesque dance stylings of Deepa De Jour, Azalea Faye, Kiki Von Kitsch and Dollie Holiday. These ladies will be shaking their moneymakers in sexy horror-themed numbers. We'll also have a ton of prizes from fave fright distributors like Synapse, Vivendi, Shout! Factory, entertainment one and Palisades Tartan. So if you have been meaning to stock up on some awesome horror DVDs and Blu-rays, this could be your lucky night! A number of Fango writers and staff will be on hand to sign issues and help with all your frightful needs, and there'll be catering by Captain Slappy's Hotdog Emporium and a bar, because nothing goes better with scary movies and sexy dancers than liquor and a frank!

This should be one hell of a night you won't want to miss. For more information, see our Face book invite, and check out our killer sponsors below!

FANGORIA's 300th issue, on sale in January, is a celebration of horror featuring mini-essays on 300 of the scariest, strangest, most surreal and spooky movies in cinema history, written by our staff as well as such genre luminaries as George A. Romero, Eli Roth, Robert Englund, Tom Holland, Tony Todd, Werner Herzog, Uwe Boll (!?) and others. Look for our on-line unveiling of the cover soon and the mag to arrive in January.
