FANGORIA will present a free screening of the box-office smash INSIDIOUS on Monday, July 11 at Los Angeles' Silent Movie Theater (611 North Fairfax Avenue; [323] 655-2510), hosted by director James Wan and screenwriter Leigh Whannell (creators of SAW)! The show starts at 7:30 p.m., and the INSIDIOUS team will participate in a Q&A after the screening moderated by Fango contributor/filmmaker Anthony C. Ferrante (BOO, HEADLESS HORSEMAN). And for the first time for FANGORIA fans, the Q&A portion of the event will be streamed live over the web on Facebook and right here at Fangoria.com. Fans can send in their questions in advance via Facebook and Twitter using #INSIDIOUSLIVE. See below the jump for more details on the special Fango night.

Fango's INSIDIOUS screening will be a free show; to obtain tickets, send an e-mail to FANGORIAScreening@gmail.com. You must list “INSIDIOUS” as your subject line. Offer is good for you and one guest. Plus tell us your full name and whether you want to be added to the FANGORIA newsletter list so we can inform you about future Fango screenings and events. Names will be checked at the door. Offer is first come, first served, and we will confirm your RSVP. Seating is not guaranteed, however, so arrive early. This special show is sponsored by Sony Pictures Home Entertainment, who releases INSIDIOUS on DVD and Blu-ray July 12.

INSIDIOUS pays tribute to such horror classics as CARNIVAL OF SOULS, THE EXORCIST and POLTERGEIST. Renais (28 WEEKS LATER's Rose Byrne) and her husband Josh (HARD CANDY's Patrick Wilson) are still unpacking boxes in their new home when she first senses a sinister presence. Eerie events steadily escalate into supernatural attacks, until one day oldest son Dalton (Ty Simpkins) slips into a baffling coma. Renais and Josh abandon their ghost-ridden abode and attempt to heal their broken family, turning to an unorthodox expert in paranormal occurrences (2001 MANIACS' Lin Shaye). Chillingly, they soon discover—it's not the house that's haunted... Barbara Hershey (BLACK SWAN, THE ENTITY, RIDING THE BULLET) costars in the film, which was produced by PARANORMAL ACTIVITY's Oren Peli, Jason Blum and Steven Schneider.
