As our KISS: MONSTER magazine continues to sell, KISS co-founder, pop culture staple and former FANGORIA cover mug, Gene Simmons is venturing back to his very own House of Horrors...in comic form, that is.

Arcana Comics is the new home for Simmons Comics, Gene's own outlet for his very weird fantasies. It's no secret that Simmons built the foundations of his public persona on his adoration of all things bizarre and especially, four-color and paneled, and Arcana is bringing some of his most flamboyant creations to life, including the S&M tinted superheroes ZIPPER and DOMINATRIX. But the real appeal for Fango fans will be the SIMMONS HOUSE OF HORRORS title, an EC-styled series of short, strange tales of suspense and shock distilled from the rocker's geek-culture fuelled id.

Arcana will feature Simmons at their booth at this year's star-studded Comic-Con in San Diego to promote the ultra-limited edition SIMMONS COMICS ANTHOLOGY, a compendium of the original first issue of all three titles, plus a preview of the new Arcana/Simmons title THE SLAVE TRADE. Only 200 copies will be available and Gene will be there to sign them on Friday, July 13th at 2 p.m.

If you're a fan, and plan to attend the event—the hub for fantastic pop culture of every persuasion—drop by the Arcana booth and meet the God of Thunder himself. And then, stroll down a few isles and visit the FANGORIA crew at the blood-spattered Fango booth (#4018) to pick up a copy of the KISS: MONSTER mag and a few FANGORIA back issues.
